

Daily Bible Note

Date: May 31, 2026

I. Today's Reading

NKJV: 1 Corinthians 10:23-33

23 "All things are lawful for me, but not all things are helpful; all things are lawful for me, but not all things edify."

24 "Let no one seek his own, but each one the other's well-being."

25 "Eat whatever is sold in the meat market, asking no questions for conscience' sake;"

26 "for 'the earth is the Lord's, and all its fullness.'"

27 "If any of those who do not believe invites you to dinner, and you desire to go, eat whatever is set before you, asking no question for conscience' sake."

28 "But if anyone says to you, 'This was offered to idols,' do not eat it for the sake of the one who told you, and for conscience' sake; for 'the earth is the Lord's, and all its fullness.'"

29 "'Conscience,' I say, not your own, but that of the other. For why is my liberty judged by another man's conscience?"

30 "But if I partake with thanks, why am I evil spoken of for the food over which I give thanks?"

31 "Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God."

32 "Give no offense, either to the Jews or to the Greeks or to the church of God,"

33 "just as I also please all men in all things, not seeking my own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved."

II. Key Summary

- Freedom is real, but Paul reframes the question: not "am I allowed to do this?" but "will this help others grow?"
- Someone else's conscience can matter more than your rights. Sometimes, stepping back out of care for others is the most loving thing you can do.

- "Do all to the glory of God" (v.31) is the bottom line — a principle that applies to every choice, big or small.
-

III. Passage Analysis

1. Freedom Finds Its Direction in Love

"He is being very consistent according to one principle: liberty within the limits of love."
[1]

Paul doesn't want to take freedom away — he wants to show us what freedom looks like when it's guided by love. When using your rights might cause someone else to stumble, love takes priority over being right. That's not a restriction on freedom; it's freedom living the way it was meant to.

2. Every Ordinary Moment Can Be an Act of Worship

"No act of life is in itself either religious or secular. The quality of each act depends on the spirit which guides it." [2]

Eating, making choices, how you treat people — none of these are automatically "spiritual" or "not spiritual." What makes any moment count is the intention behind it. When verse 31 says "whatever you do," it's stretching this principle into every corner of daily life.

IV. Reflection Question

Have you ever kept doing something you had every right to do — watching a show, texting, playing a game — while someone nearby was clearly being left out? Did you notice, and what did you do?

If the real question isn't "can I do this?" but "is this good for them?" — would your answer to that moment change?

References

[1] Enduring Word, David Guzik,

<https://enduringword.com/bible-commentary/1-corinthians-10/>

[2] BibleHub.com, Ellicott's Commentary,

https://www.biblehub.com/commentaries/1_corinthians/10-31.htm