Daily Bible Note

Date: 2026-10-27

I. Today's Reading

NKJV: Song of Solomon 4:1-16

1 Behold, you are fair, my love! Behold, you are fair! You have dove’s eyes behind your veil. Your hair is like a flock of goats, Going down from Mount Gilead.

2 Your teeth are like a flock of shorn sheep Which have come up from the washing, Every one of which bears twins, And none is barren among them.

3 Your lips are like a strand of scarlet, And your mouth is lovely. Your temples behind your veil Are like a piece of pomegranate.

4 Your neck is like the tower of David, Built for an armory, On which hang a thousand bucklers, All shields of mighty men.

5 Your two breasts are like two fawns, Twins of a gazelle, Which feed among the lilies.

6 Until the day breaks And the shadows flee away, I will go my way to the mountain of myrrh And to the hill of frankincense.

7 You are all fair, my love, And there is no spot in you.

8 Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse, With me from Lebanon. Look from the top of Amana, From the top of Senir and Hermon, From the lions’ dens, From the mountains of the leopards.

9 You have ravished my heart, My sister, my spouse; You have ravished my heart With one look of your eyes, With one link of your necklace.

10 How fair is your love, My sister, my spouse! How much better than wine is your love, And the scent of your perfumes Than all spices!

11 Your lips, O my spouse, Drip as the honeycomb; Honey and milk are under your tongue; And the fragrance of your garments Is like the fragrance of Lebanon.

12 A garden enclosed Is my sister, my spouse, A spring shut up, A fountain sealed.

13 Your plants are an orchard of pomegranates With pleasant fruits, Fragrant henna with spikenard,

14 Spikenard and saffron, Calamus and cinnamon, With all trees of frankincense, Myrrh and aloes, With all the chief spices—

15 A fountain of gardens, A well of living waters, And streams from Lebanon.

16 Awake, O north wind, And come, O south! Blow upon my garden, That its spices may flow out. Let my beloved come to his garden And eat its pleasant fruits.

II. Key Summary

• He praises her eyes, hair, teeth, lips, temples, neck, and breasts, comparing them to dove's eyes, a flock of goats, shorn sheep, a strand of scarlet, a piece of pomegranate, the tower of David, and two fawns; then he says, "You are all fair, my love, and there is no spot in you." (vv. 1–7)

• He calls her "my spouse" and asks her to come with him from Lebanon, to look from the top of Amana, Senir and Hermon, from the lions' dens and the mountains of the leopards; he calls her "my sister, my spouse," says she has ravished his heart with one look of her eyes, and says her love is much better than wine. (vv. 8–11)

• He calls her "a garden enclosed… a spring shut up, a fountain sealed," with pomegranates, spikenard, saffron, myrrh, aloes, and all the chief spices, and "a fountain of gardens, a well of living waters"; then she says, "Awake, O north wind, and come, O south!" and "Let my beloved come to his garden and eat its pleasant fruits." (vv. 12–16)

III. Passage Analysis

Words Spoken First

> "The beloved began not with aggressive or selfish actions, but with tender and confidence building words to his maiden." [1]

From v. 1 to v. 15, he is the one speaking. First he names her beauty one part at a time (vv. 1–7). Then he says "with me" twice, asking her to come with him (v. 8). After that he tells her, "You have ravished my heart" (v. 9).

Step by step, he comes near her with words, and only in v. 16 does she speak.

From "My Garden" to "His Garden"

> "A line before, the maiden called it "my garden"; now it was his garden." [1]

In v. 12 he calls her "a garden enclosed," a garden shut and locked. In v. 16 she first says, "Blow upon my garden," and then, "Let my beloved come to his garden." It is the same garden: one line calls it "mine," and the next calls it "his."

The enclosed garden is opened when she gives it to him with her own words.

IV. Reflection Question

In the kind of relationship you hope for, how would two people talk to each other and treat each other?

The bridegroom tells his bride, "How fair is your love… How much better than wine is your love" (v. 10), words she had once said to him (1:2). In v. 16 she answers him: "Let my beloved come to his garden." Within the security of marriage the two of them respond to each other and enjoy the sweetness of this blessing, and their love moves forward as both of them freely choose it. [1]

References

[1] Enduring Word, David Guzik, Commentary on Song of Solomon 4, https://enduringword.com/bible-commentary/song-of-solomon-4/