Daily Bible Note

Date: 2026-10-28

I. Today's Reading

NKJV: Song of Solomon 5:1-16

1 I have come to my garden, my sister, my spouse; I have gathered my myrrh with my spice; I have eaten my honeycomb with my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk. Eat, O friends! Drink, yes, drink deeply, O beloved ones!

2 I sleep, but my heart is awake; It is the voice of my beloved! He knocks, saying, "Open for me, my sister, my love, My dove, my perfect one; For my head is covered with dew, My locks with the drops of the night."

3 I have taken off my robe; How can I put it on again? I have washed my feet; How can I defile them?

4 My beloved put his hand By the latch of the door, And my heart yearned for him.

5 I arose to open for my beloved, And my hands dripped with myrrh, My fingers with liquid myrrh, On the handles of the lock.

6 I opened for my beloved, But my beloved had turned away and was gone. My heart leaped up when he spoke. I sought him, but I could not find him; I called him, but he gave me no answer.

7 The watchmen who went about the city found me. They struck me, they wounded me; The keepers of the walls Took my veil away from me.

8 I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, If you find my beloved, That you tell him I am lovesick!

9 What is your beloved More than another beloved, O fairest among women? What is your beloved More than another beloved, That you so charge us?

10 My beloved is white and ruddy, Chief among ten thousand.

11 His head is like the finest gold; His locks are wavy, And black as a raven.

12 His eyes are like doves By the rivers of waters, Washed with milk, And fitly set.

13 His cheeks are like a bed of spices, Banks of scented herbs. His lips are lilies, Dripping liquid myrrh.

14 His hands are rods of gold Set with beryl. His body is carved ivory Inlaid with sapphires.

15 His legs are pillars of marble Set on bases of fine gold. His countenance is like Lebanon, Excellent as the cedars.

16 His mouth is most sweet, Yes, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, And this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem!

---

II. Key Summary

• The bridegroom says, "my sister, my spouse," and tells how he has come to his garden, gathered his myrrh and spice, eaten his honeycomb and honey, and drunk his wine and milk; then comes the call, "Eat, O friends! Drink, yes, drink deeply, O beloved ones!" (v. 1)

• She sleeps, but her heart is awake; she hears her beloved knock and ask her to open, saying his head is covered with dew. She answers, "I have taken off my robe; how can I put it on again? I have washed my feet; how can I defile them?" He puts his hand by the latch, she rises and opens, but he has turned away and gone. She seeks and calls with no answer, is struck by the watchmen, has her veil taken, and charges the daughters of Jerusalem to tell him "I am lovesick." (vv. 2–8)

• The daughters ask, "What is your beloved more than another beloved?" She describes his head, locks, eyes, cheeks, lips, hands, body, legs, and countenance, says "he is altogether lovely," and ends with, "This is my beloved, and this is my friend." (vv. 9–16)

---

III. Passage Analysis

The Distance of One Door

> "It isn't really important whether this section should be chronologically arranged after or before the wedding and consummation previously described. The emphasis here is not on the married or non-married status of the leading man and woman, but on a difficulty in their relationship." [1]

This chapter sets two scenes side by side: in v. 1 the two are already together in the garden, but from v. 2 on, a door stands between them. She says, "I sleep, but my heart is awake": her heart has already been woken by her beloved's voice, yet her body is still lying down, and the first words out of her mouth are two "How can I"s (vv. 2–3). Only when he puts his hand by the latch is she moved by his true love, decides to give in, and rises to open the door (vv. 4–5). [2]

She wanted to see him, yet could not let go of the comfort she had just settled into; by the time her body finally caught up with her heart, no one was outside the door.

---

"This Is My Beloved"

> "The maiden assured herself of how highly she prized her beloved, happily calling him her friend. We sense a confidence and strength of conviction in these words." [1]

The door opened, but he was gone. In the city she seeks and calls with no answer, and she is even struck and wounded (vv. 6–7). Then the daughters of Jerusalem ask her what is so special about this man. As soon as she speaks, she names everything good about him from head to foot, ending with "he is altogether lovely" (vv. 10–16).

He is not yet found, but she knows exactly who she is looking for: "This is my beloved, and this is my friend."

---

IV. Reflection Question

Have you ever missed a chance to respond in love? In the moment of losing it, what would you do?

The bride opened the door, but her beloved had turned away and was gone; she sought him and called him, was struck by the watchmen, and still charged the daughters of Jerusalem, "If you find my beloved, that you tell him I am lovesick!" (vv. 6–8) Having missed that one door, she searched all the more urgently, and grew all the clearer about who she was looking for: "He is altogether lovely… This is my beloved." (v. 16)

---

References

[1] Enduring Word, David Guzik, Commentary on Song of Solomon 5, https://enduringword.com/bible-commentary/song-of-solomon-5/

[2] 華人基督徒查經資料網站, Song of Solomon 5 notes (《啟導本聖經註釋》),
https://www.ccbiblestudy.org/Old%20Testament/22Song/22GT05.htm