I. Today's Reading

NKJV: Ezekiel 42:1–20

1 Then he brought me out into the outer court, by the way toward the north; and he brought me into the chamber which was opposite the separating courtyard, and which was opposite the building toward the north.

2 Facing the length, which was one hundred cubits (the width was fifty cubits), was the north door.

3 Opposite the inner court of twenty cubits, and opposite the pavement of the outer court, was gallery against gallery in three stories.

4 In front of the chambers, toward the inside, was a walk ten cubits wide, at a distance of one cubit; and their doors faced north.

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter, because the galleries took away space from them more than from the lower and middle stories of the building.

6 For they were in three stories and did not have pillars like the pillars of the courts; therefore the upper level was shortened more than the lower and middle levels from the ground up.

7 And a wall which was outside ran parallel to the chambers, at the front of the chambers, toward the outer court; its length was fifty cubits.

8 The length of the chambers toward the outer court was fifty cubits, whereas that facing the temple was one hundred cubits.

9 At the lower chambers was the entrance on the east side, as one goes into them from the outer court.

10 Also there were chambers in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, opposite the separating courtyard and opposite the building.

11 There was a walk in front of them also, and their appearance was like the chambers which were toward the north; they were as long and as wide as the others, and all their exits and entrances were according to plan.

12 And corresponding to the doors of the chambers that were facing south, as one enters them, there was a door in front of the walk, the way directly in front of the wall toward the east.

13 Then he said to me, "The north chambers and the south chambers, which are opposite the separating courtyard, are the holy chambers where the priests who approach the Lord shall eat the most holy offerings. There they shall lay the most holy offerings—the grain offering, the sin offering, and the trespass offering—for the place is holy.

14 When the priests enter them, they shall not go out of the holy chamber into the outer court; but there they shall leave their garments in which they minister, for they are holy. They shall put on other garments; then they may approach that which is for the people."

15 Now when he had finished measuring the inner temple, he brought me out through the gateway that faces toward the east, and measured it all around.

16 He measured the east side with the measuring rod, five hundred rods by the measuring rod all around.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred rods by the measuring rod all around.

18 He measured the south side, five hundred rods by the measuring rod.

19 He came around to the west side and measured five hundred rods by the measuring rod.

20 He measured it on the four sides; it had a wall all around, five hundred cubits long and five hundred wide, to separate the holy areas from the common.

II. Key Summary

- The guide brought Ezekiel out to the outer court and measured the chambers north and south of the temple: one hundred cubits long and fifty cubits wide, built in three stories, with the upper level shorter than the lower and middle ones, and a walk ten cubits wide and a hundred cubits long in front of them.
- The guide explained what the chambers were for: the priests who approach the Lord would eat the most holy offerings there and lay up the grain offering, the sin offering, and the trespass offering there; when they finished ministering they had to leave their holy garments in the chambers and put on other garments before going out to the people's court.

- After measuring the inner temple, the guide brought Ezekiel out through the east gateway and measured the compound on all four sides—five hundred on the east, north, south, and west—with a wall all around, five hundred long and five hundred wide, to separate the holy areas from the common.

III. Passage Analysis

The holy garments stay in the chamber, and the line is visible

The storage chambers were also for the holy clothing worn by the priests as they served. When their duties were completed, they were to put on other garments to go out among the people. [1]

A priest could not walk straight into the outer court still wearing the holy garments, and could not offer sacrifices in everyday clothes either—between serving God and ordinary life there was an action he had to carry out with his own hands. Being set apart was something concrete here: change clothes, step into that room, make the line real.

Holiness comes from God, and people are set apart for His use

Notice here that the temple is holy because God is holy, and so His dwelling place is holy too. Scripture never treats a place or a building as holy in itself. When the Bible calls a person, a building, or a place holy, it means they have been set apart to be used by the holy God. [2]

The surrounding wall marks off the holy ground from the common, and what makes that ground valuable is the One who lives inside it. It works the same way with people: being called holy is not a status you earn on your own—it means God has set you apart and intends to use you.

IV. Reflection Question

What is one thing in your life that you keep for God on purpose, apart from everything else?

The priests left their holy garments in the chamber and the temple had a wall around it—being set apart means marking off a piece of ordinary life.
