I. Today's Reading

NKJV: Song of Solomon 2:1-17

1 I am the rose of Sharon, And the lily of the valleys.

2 Like a lily among thorns, So is my love among the daughters.

3 Like an apple tree among the trees of the woods, So is my beloved among the sons. I sat down in his shade with great delight, And his fruit was sweet to my taste.

4 He brought me to the banqueting house, And his banner over me was love.

5 Sustain me with cakes of raisins, Refresh me with apples, For I am lovesick.

6 His left hand is under my head, And his right hand embraces me.

7 I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, By the gazelles or by the does of the field, Do not stir up nor awaken love Until it pleases.

8 The voice of my beloved! Behold, he comes Leaping upon the mountains, Skipping upon the hills.

9 My beloved is like a gazelle or a young stag. Behold, he stands behind our wall; He is looking through the windows, Gazing through the lattice.

10 My beloved spoke, and said to me: “Rise up, my love, my fair one, And come away.

11 For lo, the winter is past, The rain is over and gone.

12 The flowers appear on the earth; The time of singing has come, And the voice of the turtledove Is heard in our land.

13 The fig tree puts forth her green figs, And the vines with the tender grapes Give a good smell. Rise up, my love, my fair one, And come away!

14 “O my dove, in the clefts of the rock, In the secret places of the cliff, Let me see your face, Let me hear your voice; For your voice is sweet, And your face is lovely.”

15 Catch us the foxes, The little foxes that spoil the vines, For our vines have tender grapes.

16 My beloved is mine, and I am his. He feeds his flock among the lilies.

17 Until the day breaks And the shadows flee away, Turn, my beloved, And be like a gazelle Or a young stag Upon the mountains of Bether.

II. Key Summary

• The two compare each other to things in nature: she calls herself "the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys"; he says she is "like a lily among thorns" among the daughters; she says he is "like an apple tree among the trees of the woods" among the sons (vv. 1–3).

• She says, "He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love," then charges the daughters of Jerusalem: "Do not stir up nor awaken love until it pleases." (vv. 4–7)

• She hears her beloved coming, "leaping upon the mountains," and says, "My beloved spoke, and said to me"; in what follows, "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away" appears twice. The chapter ends with her words: "My beloved is mine, and I am his." (vv. 8–17)

III. Passage Analysis

Until It Pleases

> "'Until it pleases' means love should follow its natural course; only love that is willing is true love." [1]

"Do not stir up nor awaken" means not pushing or rushing, but letting love come in its own time (v. 7). When he invites her to come away, he also speaks of the timing: the winter is past, the flowers appear; but the figs are still "green figs," and the vines have only "tender grapes" (vv. 11–13, 15).

The flowers have come; the fruit is not yet ripe.

"Rise Up and Come Away"

> "It was important for her to know that he really wanted to do this with her and did not do it reluctantly, as if he were simply willing to make himself miserable if it could please her. It was important for her to know that he really did simply want to be with her." [2]

He gives his invitation twice, and says he wants to see her face and hear her voice (vv. 10, 13, 14). These are all his words as she retells them.

What she needs to be sure of is that he truly wants to be with her.

IV. Reflection Question

If you really like someone, what is one thing you'd be willing to wait for instead of rushing it?

She is so in love that she says, "I am lovesick" (v. 5), yet what she tells the daughters of Jerusalem is "Do not stir up nor awaken love until it pleases" (v. 7). When her beloved comes to invite her, the figs are still green and the vines have only tender grapes (vv. 13, 15); and at the end of the chapter, what she says to him is still, "Until the day breaks and the shadows flee away, turn, my beloved…" (v. 17).
