I. Today's Reading

NKJV: Nahum 3:1-11

1 Woe to the bloody city! It is all full of lies and robbery. Its victim never departs.

2 The noise of a whip and the noise of rattling wheels, of galloping horses, of clattering chariots!

3 Horsemen charge with bright sword and glittering spear. There is a multitude of slain, a great number of bodies, countless corpses—they stumble over the corpses—

4 Because of the multitude of harlotries of the seductive harlot, the mistress of sorceries, who sells nations through her harlotries, and families through her sorceries.

5 "Behold, I am against you," says the Lord of hosts; "I will lift your skirts over your face, I will show the nations your nakedness, and the kingdoms your shame.

6 I will cast abominable filth upon you, make you vile, and make you a spectacle.

7 It shall come to pass that all who look upon you will flee from you, and say, 'Nineveh is laid waste! Who will bemoan her?' Where shall I seek comforters for you?"

8 Are you better than No Amon that was situated by the River, that had the waters around her, whose rampart was the sea, whose wall was the sea?

9 Ethiopia and Egypt were her strength, and it was boundless; Put and Lubim were your helpers.

10 Yet she was carried away, she went into captivity; her young children also were dashed to pieces at the head of every street; they cast lots for her honorable men, and all her great men were bound in chains.

11 You also will be drunk; you will be hidden; you also will seek refuge from the enemy.

II. Key Summary

- Nahum declares Nineveh a "bloody city" — filled with lies, violence, and ceaseless plunder — as the grounds for God's coming judgment (vv. 1–4).
 - God himself declares "I am against you," announcing he will expose Nineveh's shame before all nations, bringing her from the height of power to total ruin (vv. 5–7).
 - Nahum uses No Amon (Thebes) as a precedent: that powerful Egyptian city had water defenses and strong allies, yet it still fell — Nineveh's strength is no exception (vv. 8–11).

III. Passage Analysis

Boasting in Evil: Nineveh's Pride

"Not only were the rulers of Assyria terribly cruel, but they also boasted of their cruelty on monuments that exist in museums to this day: 'I cut off their heads and formed them into pillars'; 'I flayed all the chief men who had revolted, and I covered the pillar with their skins'; '3,000 captives I burned with fire'; 'I cut off the limbs of the officers who had rebelled.'" [1]

Nineveh's evil wasn't hidden — they celebrated it. When Nahum calls it the "bloody city," he's tearing away the empire's respectable facade to reveal what it was actually built on.

No One Gets a Pass: The Lesson of No Amon

"Nineveh's fate is a memorial to God's commitment to bring down the arrogant in every age." [2]

Nahum pointed to Thebes (No Amon) — a great city the Assyrians themselves had destroyed — to show that no city gets to assume it will escape the same fate. The more invincible a power feels, the harder it tends to fall.

IV. Reflection Question

Have you ever watched someone get away with something wrong because they were popular, had connections, or just seemed untouchable — and wondered if anything would ever actually happen to them?

Nahum reminds us that God sees everything. No one — no matter how powerful — escapes facing what they've done.
